Subject: Children's Bible Quizzing - 2010 NIV Version

Dear Directors,

As many of you may already know, Zondervan Publishing has come out with a new 2010 NIV version of the Bible. This new NIV is set to be printed in March 2010. However, www.biblegateway.com is already using the 2010 NIV as their default search.

As of Nov., if you have copied anything from www.biblegateway.com then you have copied and pasted from the revised translation, and it is DIFFERENT than what has been used in the Children's Bible Quizzing curriculum.

This has the potential to cause quite a confusion in the world of quizzing. NPH is aware of this change and many conversations of what to do next have already taken place. At this point, due to their Zondervan copyright agreement, we are to use the 1984 NIV for print in our curriculum. This will likely not change for a few years. I can tell you, for sure, that the Matthew Children's Quizzing curriculum will be printed using the 1984 NIV.

What does this mean for directors and coaches? This will mean that we will all have to be a bit more conscious when printing from www.biblegateway.com (I use it for questions, too) or any other internet Bible source. The default when you open www.biblegateway.com is the 2010 NIV. However, there is an option to select the 1984 NIV in the drop-down menu.

Please make sure all of your coaches are aware of this so that there is no confusion at quiz competitions.

Blessings,
